Sahib Bibi Aur Ghulam is a story set in Bengal at the turn of the 20th century. It is a story of a Zamindar family who lives in the Badi Haveli, owned by two brothers, Badi Babu and Chhote Babu. Wine flows freely in their house and the brother prefer the tinkling anklets of courtesans to the endearing smiles of their wives. However, Chhote Babu's wife (Meena Kumari) cannot reconcile herself to the hedonistic habits of her spouse and she rises in revolt. At this juncture of the lives of the Badi haveli residents, comes Bhootnath (Guru Dutt), a village simpleton, who finds a job at the Mohini Sindoor factory as a clerk. Bhootnath strikes a warm relationship with Jaba (Waheeda Rehman), the factory owner's daughter. Meanwhile Chhote Bahu reads that applying Mohini Sindoor will bring her errant husband back. She sends for Bhootnath and asks him to get her some Sindoor. In an effort to bringing her errant husband back, Chhote Bahu sets an example of self-sacrifice that leaves everyone at the Badi Haveli in astonishment.
